The Daman End of Service Program has been structured as an 'umbrella fund' with various 'sub-funds' and the structure has been approved by the UAE Capital Market Authority ("CMA") and the UAE Ministry of Human Resources & Emiratization ("MOHRE").

Employers who elect to be part of this optional End of Service Program will make monthly contributions to the Daman End of Service Program fund. These contributions are then invested by skilled investment managers to grow and enhance the benefits available to employees. The Daman End of Service Program is available as a voluntary alternative to the statutory end of service entitlements regime and brings greater security to employers and employees alike.

These are all roles that are typical for a program of this nature and all the service providers are leaders in their field.

4. What are the products on offer through the Daman End of Service Program?

The following solutions are available to employees:

(a) Conventional solutions (Daman Investments Capital Protection Fund)

These are money market non-Shariah compliant offerings available in three classes:

- basic subscriptions for unskilled workers ("Basic Unskilled Units", also known as 'Class C Units');
- basic subscriptions for skilled workers ("Basic Skilled Units", also known as 'Class B Units'); and
- voluntary contributions for both skilled and unskilled workers ("Voluntary Contribution Units", also known as 'Class A Units')

(b) Shariah solutions (Daman Investments Shari'ah Compliant Capital Protection Fund)

These are Shariah compliant offerings which are available in three classes:

- basic subscriptions for unskilled workers ("Basic Unskilled Units", also known as 'Class C Units');
- basic subscriptions for skilled workers ("Basic Skilled Units", also known as 'Class B Units');
- voluntary contributions for both skilled and unskilled workers ("Voluntary Contribution Units", also known as 'Class A Units')

5. What is the difference between the Basic Unskilled Units, the Basic Skilled Units and the Voluntary Contribution Units?

The distinction between the units is as follows:

- Basic Unskilled Units (known as 'Class C Units') – these units represent the basic subscriptions by unskilled workers, being the minimum amount that an unskilled worker is entitled to receive from his or her employer at the end of service. These Units qualify for and benefit from the special limited capital protection feature.
- Basic Skilled Units (known as 'Class B Units') – these units represent the basic subscriptions by skilled workers, being the minimum amount that a skilled worker is entitled to from his or her employer at the end of service. These Units qualify for and benefit from the special limited capital protection feature.
- Voluntary Contribution Units (known as 'Class A Units') - these units represent purely voluntary subscriptions by skilled and unskilled workers, being amounts over and above the minimum amount that a skilled or unskilled worker is entitled to from his or her employer at the end of service. These contributions are made by entirely at the option of the employee. These Units qualify for and benefit from the special limited capital protection feature.

6. Who qualifies as skilled workers?

An employee whose monthly salary is at least 4,000 AED or equivalent as per the approved labor classification system on the labor market.

7. Are the products capital protected?

The Basic Unskilled Units and the Basic Skilled Units (together "Basic Units"), together with the Voluntary Contribution Units (together with the Basic Units, the "Units"), benefit from a capital protection program via a special capital reserve and fee waiver mechanism. It is important to note that whilst Daman believes that this mechanism will provide a significant amount of protection for investors, there is no absolute guarantee of return of capital in all circumstances. As the Units do not come with an unconditional capital guarantee, there is the possibility that investors in Units may experience limited losses of their initial subscription if market conditions remain challenged for an extended period.

8. How does the capital protection work?

The fund will allocate an amount to a special capital reserve amount ("Capital Reserve Allocation Amount") of up to zero-point-five percent (0.5%) annually, based on the net asset value (NAV) of the Units. This Capital Reserve Allocation Amount will be deposited into a special reserve account, which is specifically earmarked to mitigate any losses incurred by investors subscribing for Units on the relevant day that an investor is entitled to withdraw the sums due to him or her. It is important to note that Capital Reserve Allocation Amount is not an additional fee and is not payable to any of the service providers to the Daman End of Service Program. In addition to the Capital Reserve Allocation Amount, Daman, as fund manager, may, if necessary, waive its management fee for any given month if the Capital Reserve Allocation Amount is insufficient to completely offset any accumulated losses attributable to redemptions of Units during that period.

9. What does the Daman End of Service Program fund invest in?

The Daman End of Service Program's conventional solutions will primarily invest in Money Market instruments in the UAE.

The Daman End of Service Program's Shariah solutions will primarily invest in Shari'ah compliant Money Market instruments in the UAE.

10. What is the expected return of the Daman End of Service Program?

The Daman End of Service Program fund primarily invests in short-term deposits held at highly reputable banks and short-term fixed income products issued by similarly respected organisations. As a result, the Daman End of Service Program fund's gross returns - before deducting operational fees and excluding the Capital Reserve Allocation Amount - are expected to align closely with the typical returns of short-term, low-risk investments available in the market.

11. What are the fees associated with investing in the Daman End of Service Program?

Please refer to our fund prospectus regarding the fees associated with investing in the Daman End of Service Program. The prospectus can be made available upon request.

12. Are dividends and distributions paid out to investors?

During the lifespan of the Daman End of Service Program, no dividends or distributions are paid to investors, other than when, as employees, an investor would be entitled to receive his or her end of service benefits and he or she exits the Daman End of Service Program. Instead, all income generated by the underlying securities within the Daman End of Service Program will be reinvested back into the Daman End of Service Program.

13. Is there a limit to the amount an employee can contribute to the Daman End of Service Program?

Total contributions made to the Daman End of Service Program fund (basic subscriptions and voluntary contributions) must not exceed 25% of an employee's gross wage.
